

Here you need to implement the logic explained in the Zoom call.

1 - On the homepage, only listings with the Exclusive Pack (business listings: priority 3 and above) and the Diamond Pack (event listings: priority 3 and above) should appear.

2 - They must be displayed randomly every time a user opens the app, or for example, refreshed every 5 minutes.

3 - Only listings within a 25 km radius of the user's current geolocation should be shown.

I think you've done this, but I've now sponsored the listing 'Officine Social Agency' and it's not showing on the homepage. Why?

Then I want to know another thing, guys, you need to clarify something for me. How often are the listings on the homepage randomized?

The suggested listings, which are always shown at the bottom of the page when I open and view any complete listing—those too must display the sponsored listings, meaning the listings that have an active advertising package. Okay? Always following the order of the packages (exclusive, prime positions, etc...).

Event Planner?

The screenshot shows a listing for a 'Wedding Planner'. The title 'Wedding Planner' is at the top left. Below it is a large green and brown graphic. At the bottom, there are icons for heart, message, and share, followed by the name 'asdasdas'. Below the name are location details ('AAA Cinemas, Satyam Theatr...'), date ('5-9-25'), price ('€324'), and rating ('0(0)'). A 'Learn More →' button is at the bottom right.

Team, in this section only planner-type listings should appear, such as wedding planner, party planner— specifically these:

- Corporate event planner
- Event planner
- Luxury event planner
- Organizzatori di eventi
- Party planner

It's a section dedicated only to them. Naturally, since it's on the homepage, only those sponsored with the Exclusive pack should appear.

Due to a misunderstanding on our side, our developers associated this section with events because of the title Event Planner. Please don't worry we will make the necessary updates and correct it.

ok

The screenshot shows a mobile application interface. At the top, there are four circular icons with labels: 'EVENT PLANNING' (a city skyline), 'Type of Event' (a starry night sky), 'INSPIRATION & CREATIVE' (a colorful abstract design), and 'DECOR & SETUP' (a forest scene). Below this is a section titled 'By Region' with four more circular icons: 'Friuli-Venezia Giulia' (a canal scene), 'Lazio' (a classical building), 'Liguria' (a coastal town), and 'Lombardia' (a butterfly). The main content area has a red border around the 'My Post' section. It displays a post by 'Luca La Porta' from '07-09-2025 • 20:38' with the content 'prova' and 'zjnzxnnzz'. Below this is a 'Latest Post' section with a 'No data found' message. The 'Latest Polls' section shows a poll by 'Rasel' from '13-08-2025 • 09:42' with the title 'Multan sultan'. At the bottom, there are navigation tabs: Home, Favorite, Inspiration, Community (which is highlighted in purple), and Chat.

Here, guys, there must be 'My posts & polls,' and I need to be able to view, edit, and delete posts and polls.

I tried to publish a poll, but I can't see it.

We have fixed it. We have already added another sect called "My Polls."

Do it this way, guys, and continue adding the missing categories inside the red box.

These categories are static — they should always stay in the fixed order I provided.

When an admin or a user creates a post, they must select where the post should be visible:

either in the categories above (Ideas & Tips, Real Events, Style & Outfits, etc.)

or in these below:

You just need to add these categories in the dropdown menu that appears when creating a new post.

The way the Inspiration section is displayed was explained just now and shown here on the side.

These categories are more expanded and static.

Subcategories shouldn't be linked to categories; they should be treated as categories themselves. However, on the Inspirations page, I want them placed underneath and not shown at the top as pills, that's all.

We can also leave it as you've done, but it isn't necessary for, say, Style & Mood to be nested under a top category. Clear?

Guys, this is very important. I just realized that as a business user, when I create a listing, I don't have the ability to edit or delete the images I've uploaded. So for example, if I want to change the cover image, how can I do it? Or if I want to replace the profile image, or maybe I accidentally uploaded a wrong photo in the gallery section — there's no way to fix it. Please make sure we add the option to edit or remove images in the listing management area.

Give business users the ability to reply to comments and reviews within their listing, whether it's a business or an event. It does the same thing you do in the community section. Thanks

ok

Team, I noticed that the review labels inside the Event Listing page always remain the same.

Let's update them as we did for the Business Listings, as follows:

For Event Listings, the average rating (scale 0-5) must display a text label based on the score:

- 4.5 – 5.0 → Top Event
- 3.5 – 4.49 → Recommended
- 2.5 – 3.49 → Standard
- 0.0 – 2.49 → Needs Improvement

• 0.0 – 2.49

If the rating is 0.0 → display New.

We are already implemented it. we are checking again on our side. then we will update you.

At the moment I don't see these changes.
You made a similar modification on the business listings part.

This change, however, is for the event listings part.

Furthermore, on the homepage, below the search bar, provider categories are shown, but again, not all are visible — probably because there are too many.

So, it might be a good idea to display here only some static macro-categories, for example:

- Location & Venues
- Setup & Decorations
- Food & Beverage
- Beauty & Wellness
- Entertainment & Animation
- Photo, Video & Media
- Planning & Staff
- Services & Rentals

Of course, when I go into the admin dashboard to create a new category, I should be able to input:

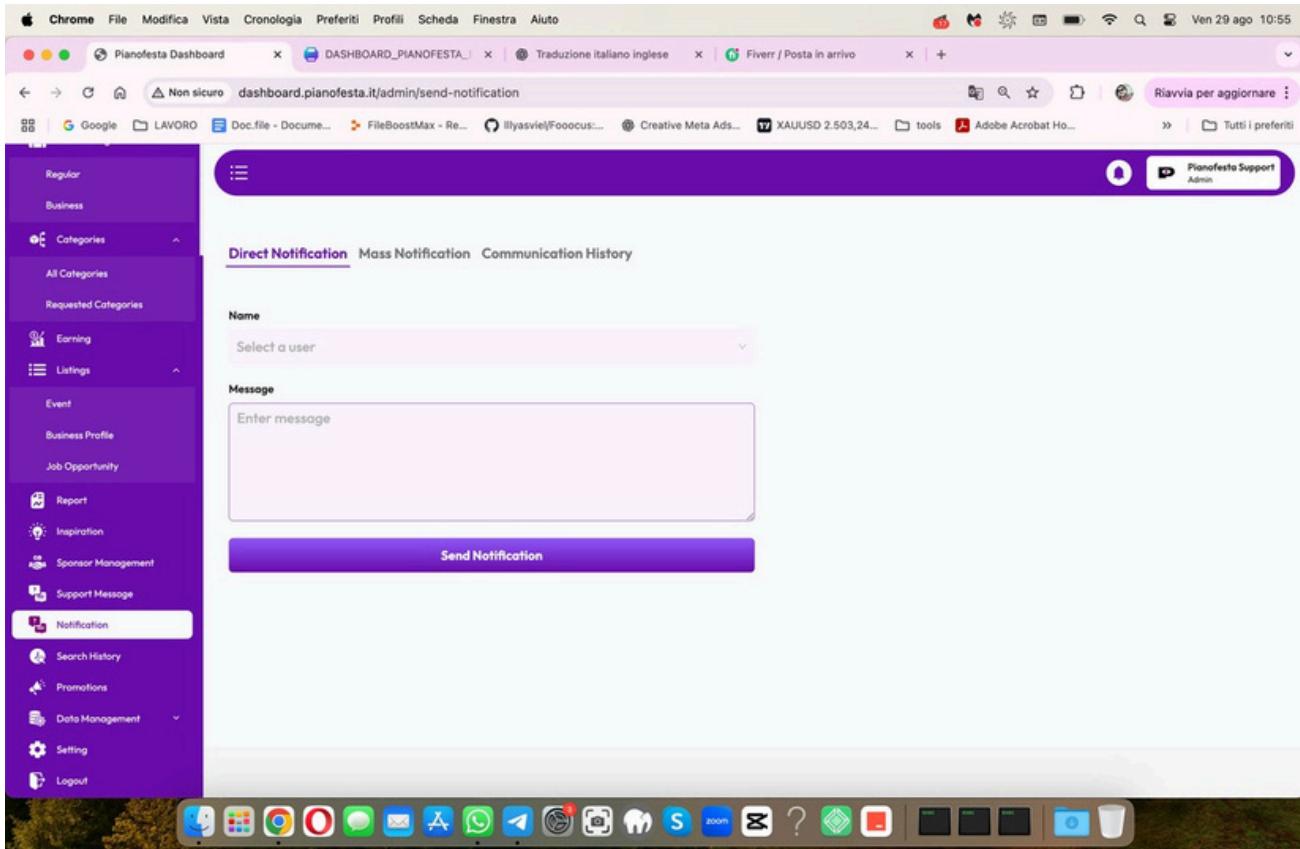

The name of the new category

The macro-category it belongs to

Is everything clear?

When our backend developer started implementing this logic, he noticed that the homepage is already handling multiple database queries simultaneously. Based on your feedback, we have added an additional feature for data randomization. Now, if we include subcategories within categories, the database queries will become even heavier and may impact the performance of the VPS. For this reason, we have temporarily put this on hold. We will need some additional time to implement this feature properly.

Team, however, when we had the Zoom call I asked you for this, and you told me you would fix it — giving me the possibility to have static macro categories on the homepage, and then I could create subcategories to associate with these macro categories. (Team, let's be clear: business users must only be able to choose the categories; they should not see the macro categories when creating a listing.)

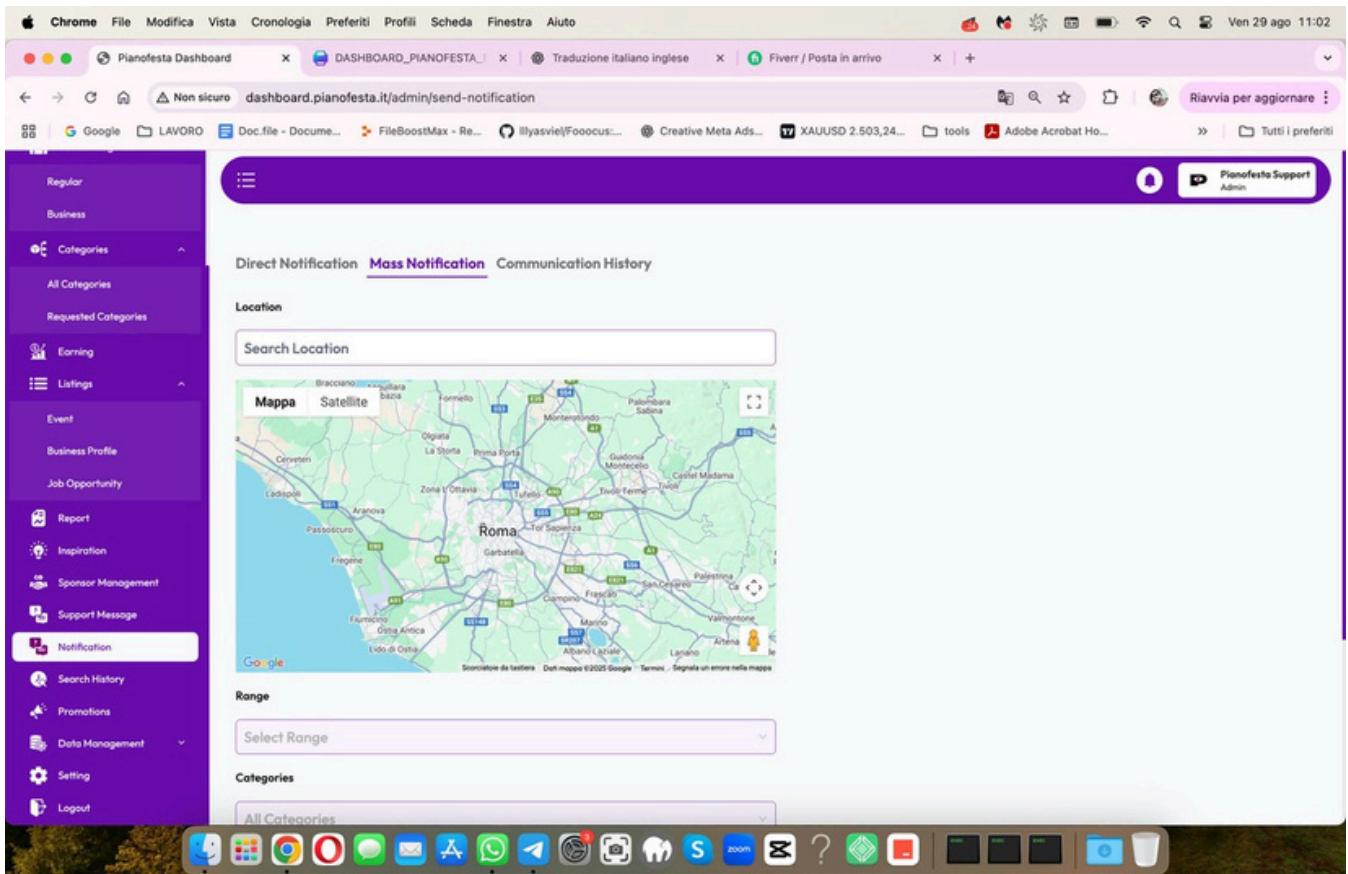

In the Direct Message UI, I need to communicate with both business users and regular users. I need a first dropdown to specify the user type (business or regular). Then, in the second dropdown, I should see only users of the selected type (either business or regular). I also need an ALL option—e.g., if I want to send a notification to all business users. So please include the ALL option.

We are already solved it.

Here I saw that you fixed it, but if I wanted to send a message to all regular users within 10 km of Rome, I wouldn't be able to, because you haven't added the option in bulk messaging to choose between regular users and business users. In other words, I can't send a bulk message only to regular users

In the Mass Notification section, on the map I'd like to see the listing pins (like in the in-app map).

Then, when I select an area—say a 10 km radius—I'd like a circle to appear on the map so I can see how far the notifications reach, i.e., the coverage area, and how many listings will receive the notification (10, 40, 100—how many?).

Also, in the category selection I have All Categories, Business, Event—why is Jobs missing?

Can you also give me the ability to send a notification to all listings that don't have an active advertising pack? Thanks.

We are already solved it.

In the communications archive I'm missing some data.

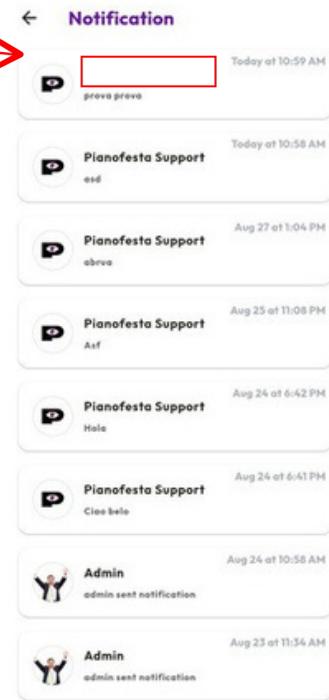

- I need to immediately see whether it's a single notification or a mass one.
- Which message was sent (right now I only see this if it's a single notification).
- If it's a mass message, how many users received it and which users they are (if the latter is difficult, let's just show the number, e.g., "35 users").

Also, they should receive not only an in-app notification but also an email.

Regarding the email, it's fine if it's something like: "You have a new notification in PianoFesta."

Also, when the notification is a mass one, in the user's notification section inside the app, the sender's name is not displayed – see screenshot.

The same issue applies to notifications sent from the button in the Search History section.

The screenshot shows a web browser window on a Mac OS X desktop. The title bar reads "Chrome File Modifica Vista Cronologia Preferiti Scheda Finestra Auto". The address bar shows "Non sicuro dashboard.pianofesta.it/admin/search-history". The page content is titled "Search History" and displays a table of search queries. The table has columns: #UID, Search Query, User, Date, Results Count, and Action. The "Action" column contains a "Send Notification" button. The data in the table is as follows:

In the Search History section, a column is missing that tells me whether the search was made by a business user or a regular user. And most importantly, I also need to know where the search was made. For example, if a user searches in Bracciano (a town near Rome) for a Mexican restaurant and zero results appear, I need to know that the search was done in Bracciano (Rome). This way, I can take action to look for Mexican restaurants in Bracciano and cover that specific area.

Team, I noticed that the search history only works with searches done using the simple search bar, and not with searches done through the wizard. What I need to know is not so much the user's current location, but rather the location where they are searching.

For example: I am in Bracciano (Rome) and I want to organize an event in Florence. In my searches I will look for Florence and, for example, search for a restaurant.

In the search history, I need to see everything that was entered, but associated with the location Florence — not Bracciano.

Here the location must be visible, as shown on the homepage under the name, with the option to click and change the search location.

This image is purely random, taken directly from one of my competitors
But I'd like a design like this, so to what we have now please add the location section above

Here, the current search bar should also include the location as an additional parameter.

Also, in normal searches it's necessary to add the location — otherwise, where would they be searching?

So, if I want to do a simple search, the 2 parameters that must be entered are at least the location and what they're looking for: either a specific supplier or a category.

Here I created an Exclusive Venues listing from the Officine Social account, and this is the correct view from the Listings section in the menu.

Here I did a search from the homepage bar and looked for Officine Social, but the category is different (the category shown here doesn't exist in the dashboard). And why does it say High instead of showing the € symbols?
